Re: NABA Public Policy Committee Statement (Agenda Item # 4)
Date: December 16th, 2020

Good Afternoon, Everyone.

Once again, on the behalf of the Nevada Association for Behavior Analysis Board and our Public Policy Committee, thank you to the state ABA board for providing this time to speak regarding NABA's actions with respect to state legislative items. For those that do not know me, my name is Wade Brown, and I'm the current President-Elect of NABA.

At this time, we currently do not have many updates as it concerns behavior analysts in the state of Nevada. We continue to look closely at the current legislation and have made plans to reach out to industry advocates to explore potential avenues for action to correct some of the issues we discussed at the meeting last month. We remain committed to discussing with the board action items as they develop, and we hope to have more updates in January.

The Public Policy Committee would like to congratulate the board on the recently launched online platform, and we look forward to hearing more about this service in the coming years. We also would like to express NABA's willingness to recruit for volunteers to help process licensure applications or renewals, as I'm sure our membership base would be eager to assist the state if opportunities were made available.

At this time, we can take any questions that the board has, but before that, I'd like to once again thank the board for their time and continued collaboration on this endeavor.
