 - Developmental services received about $14.5 million dollars in ARPA funds to work on intensive behavioral support.
 - Originally asked to focus on ‘intensive behavioral support home’.
 - A team would be put together to include: board certified behavioral analysts, possibly occupational therapy, physical therapy, nursing and any other specialist that someone may need.
 - This program models a program in California which resulted in keeping people out of institutional care and in some cases also stabilize the individual to the point they can step down into a more typical 24-hour intensive supportive living setting.
 - A lot of these programs focus on individuals that are duly diagnosed with intellectual disabilities and mental health.
 - Program would be for children and adults.
 - Up to 6 homes.
 - Half of a million dollars in ARPA funds is to hire a contractor to help look at the full picture and figure out best practices across the country in different states.

- Contractor to assist in writing a request for proposal to bring providers into our state, that focus on this group of people and getting services to them.
- Eventually will rewrite waivers so the program can be longstanding as opposed to just being funded one time with ARPA funds.
 - The vendor assisting with this is Health Management Associates (HMA).
- Currently in the research stage, talking to other states, talking to Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS), talking with various types of providers.
- Looking at lower-level interventions that can be put in place for people with dual diagnosis, especially children, to keep them in their family homes.
 - Healthcare Management Administrators (HMA) is helping figure out what intervention services are needed the most.
